BackTesseract.com, the home of the Tesseract is now live!

Tesseract, the latest in gaming peripherals today launched its social media campaign with the aim of completing a successful Kickstarter campaign throughout October.

The Tesseract is a brand new product which is being launched worldwide, which is hoped to be the next big thing in gaming peripherals. It allows for gamers to have an intuitive, precise and unique gaming experience.

Taking advantage of ground-breaking technology, the Tesseract allows users to experience gaming from a new perspective through the use of six-axis technology. With the use of the Tesseract control panel, gamers have the chance to fully customize their gaming experience, with the ability to program the controller exactly how they want to, from the different axis down to the buttons and scroll track pad.

The brains behind the Tesseract, Cojac Limited are taking to Kickstarter to aid the development of the Tesseract and kick-start the process of getting into volume production. The Tesseract is looking to ship worldwide in mid-2016, beginning the process with an October launch for Kickstarter.
